OHIO CASE LOAD IS INCREASING

Only $9,000 Available In Columbiana County
Next Month

COLUMBIA, April 8.—An estimate that Ohio and its subdivisions must raise between $15,000,000 and $16,000,000 during the remainder of 1938 to prevent a breakdown in direct relief came today from State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson on the heels of a closed meeting of Ohio League of Municipalities officials.

Ferguson, basing his estimate on a study made by his relief expert, O. P. Van Schoik, said that the state's relief case load of 124,002 in January had increased to 135,207 by February and 141,711 by March.

He asserted that 21 "distressed counties" during those months spent $672,000 of the $11,576,000 made available by the last special

Columbiana county relief officials in Lisbon today announced that only $9,000 would be available for relief purposes next month. During the winter, relief has reached as much as $20,000 a month.

All the municipalities will have to share the $9,000. The out is being made because coal will not be furnished the relief clients during the summer and those on relief can raise vegetables and other produce in their own gardens.

I. H. Vorndran, in the office of County Auditor John H. Irwin, said Columbiana county has $71,000 in "relief fund" today. "There is no way to tell how long this will last due to the fluctuation in the relief rolls," he said.

A March 18 inventory shows 1,318 families on relief in the county, representing 4,439 individuals.

Session of the legislature which officially adjourned Feb. 28, leaving them a balance of $4,803,000 for the remaining nine months of 1938.

See Huge Deficit
"Should the same ratio hold true to form in the remaining nine months, Ferguson said, 'it is estimated that the total cost will be $2,000,000 for these 21 counties, which is 80 per cent of the case load of the entire state. The anticipated deficit for these 21 counties as of Dec. 31, 1938, will be $16,000,000.'

The state auditor asserted these figures agreed with estimates of the Ohio League of Municipalities, the legislative committee of which met here yesterday to draw up a relief program for submission to Gov. Martin L. Davey within the next few days with a request for an immediate special session of the general assembly.

Here are Ferguson's figures for the most populous and most sorely pressed of the 21 counties:

County	Available for next year	Estimated deficit
Cuyahoga	$131,320	(deficit) 0
Columbiana	688,409	0
Hamilton	676,190	2

F.D.R. BILLION-DOLLAR RELIEF PLAN BOOSTED

Roosevelt Increases His Estimate; New Public Works Program Also Discussed

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 8.—President Roosevelt today said his estimate for work relief in the next fiscal year would have to be increased. He mentioned no figure.

The President also said a new public works program was under discussion, but that no decision had been reached. He mentioned no amount in this connection either, but $1,500,000,000 was the figure he was reported reliably as considering.

Long Term Loans Possible
The President said one of the features of the works program being discussed was long term loans to municipalities without interest. He said he had not decided whether to combine public works and work relief proposals in one message to congress or to make them separate.

One billion dollars for relief was proposed in the President's January budget message.

Mr. Roosevelt discussed relief shortly after Harry Hopkins, the WPA administrator, urged congress to provide a "permanent security program" based on work, instead of direct relief.

Hopkins estimated in his testimony before the senate unemployment committee that about 18,000,000 men, women and children in 6,000,000 households were receiving public assistance at the present time compared to a peak of 27,000,000 persons in the winter of 1933-34.

Some Unemployment Always
The lanky administration official declared that some unemployment will always be with us. "For that reason," he said, "we must plan a permanent security program."

Unexpected opposition to the $1,500,000,000 program of RFC business loans came today from Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), in the midst of administrative search for the best methods of pumping new funds into trade and employment channels.

Wheeler declared pending legislation to let the Reconstruction Finance Corporation make long-term industrial and public works loans would "take the lid off" questionable loans to big business.

He objected especially to what he called the lack of a safeguard on railroad loans in the house-approved measure. The power granted the RFC, he said, might be used to "bail out railroads and other big businesses at the expense of the public."

BROAD BUYING BOOSTS STOCKS

Market Animated by Report of Another Federal Spending Drive

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 8.—Broad buying swept stocks upward today in a market which brokers said was animated chiefly by reports of another federal spending drive to promote business recovery.

The rush to buy subsided, however, and gains were pared a bit after Wall Street had scanned President Roosevelt's comment in his press conference that no decision on public works spending had been made.

Brokers said headline overnight reports federal outlay might be increased $1,500,000 or more through public loans to states and communities had brought buying into the market from many sections, particularly in steel, farm implement, motor and other groups likely to benefit from construction and from expansion in public purchasing power.

Leaders were lifted $1 to more than $4 by a wave of orders which rolled into the stock exchange shortly after a quiet opening.

The move marked a resumption of the rebound from the 1938 lows touched last week, after a decline in March which had wiped out many billions of dollars in quoted values.

Bonds and major commodities joined the rebound swing upward. Wheat futures at Chicago and cotton pushed ahead, with wheat up for gains ranging to more than 3 cents a bushel at one time.

The state auditor asserted these figures agreed with estimates of the Ohio League of Municipalities, the legislative committee of which met here yesterday to draw up a relief program for submission to Gov. Martin L. Davey within the next few days with a request for an immediate special session of the general assembly.

MARIETTA, April 8.—The "pioneers" who came by land and river to this historical junction relaxed today while the 150th anniversary party of the founding of the first settlement in the Northwest Territory went merrily on.

The climax of the week-long celebration was reached yesterday when a band of 37 college youths, re-enacting the exact landing of the original settlers a century and half ago, anchored their flotilla here.

Tonight the "pioneers" will present their pageant, "Freedom On The March," to be followed by the 150th anniversary ball. A clam bake was scheduled during the day, and Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and Rep. Thomas R. Jenkins (R-Ohio) were listed as speakers.

After three days here, the band of "pioneers" will hitch up its oxen and begin a tour of 50 other Ohio cities and the states of Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota before returning here on Oct. 26. The area over which they will travel was once part of the Northwest Territory.

BLUM CABINET OVERTHROWN IN FINANCE VOTE

Senate Rejects Demand
For Dictatorial
Powers

RESIGNATION IS GIVEN DEPUTIES

Defense Minister Prepares List For New Cabinet

(By Associated Press)
PARIS, April 8.—Premier Leon Blum formally announced the resignation of his government tonight after the senate had voted down his demand for dictatorial powers over French finance.

Immediately after the senate, by a vote of 223 to 49, had shown its disdain for his "last call," the premier dashed out of the Luxembourg palace through the ranks of steel-helmeted mobile guards to the chamber of deputies.

Announces Resignation
There he announced his resignation to the deputies of his own Socialist party, who had assembled to hear his decision.

Blum's defeat came after a bitter debate with frequent exchanges of threats. The premier and senators accused each other of failure to uphold Republican principles. Blum challenged the right of the senate to cause his government's downfall.

"Let me tell you again," Blum shouted, "you have no right to decide the fate of my government."

Outside the senate building steel-helmeted mobile guards carrying carbines paced back and forth.

Anticipating Blum's resignation, Edouard Daladier, his minister of defense, prepared a list of a new cabinet.

The senators refused even to consider separate articles of the premier's finance bill.

The test came on a first vote, on directly a preliminary stage, but the senate immediately adjourned, and it was declared that the vote stood as final rejection of the premier's measures.

SLAIN OFFICER CASE DEEPENS

Body of George Conn Exhumed Yesterday; Two Bullets Removed

ZANESVILLE, April 8.—Authorities seeking to solve the mysterious slaying last autumn of George Conn, state highway patrolman, injected a new angle into their search today after, said Dr. E. R. Brush, city health officer, they exhumed the officer's body for an autopsy.

Working secretly and swiftly, Dr. Brush asserted, Prosecutor Fred Orum of Harrison county, Corp. W. B. Vance of the state highway patrol, and two men identified as doctors took the body from Greenwood cemetery yesterday and hurried it to a local hospital for X-rays.

Then, the health officer added, they removed it to an undertaking establishment where two bullets were extracted. They reburied the body last night and Orum, who could not be reached for comment, left the city. Dr. Brush said he gave Orum permission to exhumate the body.

Conn was shot to death last Sept. 27 near Freeport, while on a routine assignment. His bullet-riddled body was found the following day, stretched in a roadside ditch and covered with a piece of drapery. He was 28 years old.

Plea To Cut Sugar Imports Rejected

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Secretary Wallace rejected today a new plea that he restrict sugar imports to raise prices for the benefit of American producers.

In a letter to Senator Brown (D-Mich.), the cabinet officer declared he could not accept the contention of representatives of beet sugar producers that prices were not sufficiently high to maintain the sugar industry in the United States.

RELIEF CRISES LAID TO DAVEY

Bricker Blames Governor
For Bringing On Ohio
Relief Problem

ASHTABULA, April 8.—Former Atty. Gen. John W. Bricker left with Ashtabula county Republicans today a statement that Ohio's current relief problem would not exist "if the state government had been run efficiently, economically and even honestly."

Bricker, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, last night addressed an Ashtabula county Garfield Republican club banquet.

Threatened relief crises in Ohio municipalities, Bricker said, could have been avoided. He added that "the problem is one that can and must be met through proper adjustment."

Bricker criticized the administration of Gov. Martin L. Davey for "raising pensions before election and lowering them afterward."

Fight Among Selves

Ohio Republicans, he said, can recover the reins of state government if they "quit fighting among themselves and start fighting the Democrats."

"It is imperative that order be restored," Bricker continued. "America does not want a change in her system but wants to perfect the system we have. This northwest territory must get ready for administrative change this year by restoring Republican government in Ohio."

The speaker asserted that "uncertainty today is blasting the spirit of America; when this spirit is regained, we will have financial and economic recovery—to achieve this, there must be confidence in the administration."

At Cleveland last night the Cuyahoga county Republican executive committee voted indorsement of Bricker's candidacy.

Salem High's Band Faces Competition At Kent Tomorrow

The Salem High school band, directed by Chester M. Brautigam, will go to Kent tomorrow to compete in the district band contest.

The last time Salem High's band entered the annual competition was seven years ago. The local group ranked seventh at that time.

Brautigam is placing the band in the Class AA division, rather than the Class AA, which is for schools the size of Salem High school. By virtue of this, the Salem musicians will be competing against such schools as Canton, Lorain, Wooster, Akron. The school bands from these cities have at least 90 members, while Salem has only 53.

COLD CONTINUES IN EASTERN U. S.

Communications are Cut,
Roads Closed In Wake
Of Storm

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, April 8.—Cold rains, sleet, and drifting snow harassed the eastern half of the continent today.

Weather bureau observers said wintry weather probably would continue for at least another day over the region lashed by spring storms.

Sub-normal temperatures prevailed over a wide area from Texas to the Great Lakes, and east to the Atlantic seaboard.

Many Roads Closed
Drifting snow kept many roads closed in Iowa, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Illinois.

Eighty-six Nebraska towns and 125 Iowa communities were without telephone or telegraph service immediately after the storm. Some Illinois and Indiana communities also were cut off.

Freezing temperatures caused heavy damage to fruit crops in Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma. Southern Indiana orchardists estimated a 50 per cent loss on their peach and apple crops.

Heavy rains fell in Pittsburgh but there was little danger of floods because of low river stages.

Southwestern Kansas dug out of its worst blizzard in six years. Passenger trains were stalled in drifts at El Reno and Sayre, Okla.

N. Y. Traffic Normal

New York City traffic was restored to normal after 23,000 men cleared away a five-inch snowfall.

Three caterpillar trucks battled snowdrifts whipped by a 50-mile wind in an effort to reach seven children marooned in a school bus north of Pampa, in the Texas panhandle. Ten inches of snow fell in the panhandle. Heavy loss in livestock was feared.

At Campo, Colo., T. R. Lawrence, a truck driver, blinded by wind-driven snow and dust, drove his truck into a pit and was killed.

TWO THINGS PLAIN

The labor board's ruling on necessity of signing a contract if one is requested by a union after it has reached an agreement with an employer makes two things plain about the process of collective bargaining under the Wagner act.

First, an employer must be willing to confer with his employees or their representatives. Second, if they reach an agreement, they must put it down in writing. If that's what the employees or their representatives want.

The only thing left uncertain is how to reach an agreement, and after more than two years' experience with the Wagner act it is finally becoming evident that no law can make men reach an agreement, except the laws of the golden rule and economic necessity.

NO CONTEST

In the house of commons the other day an irate M. P. slapped another one's face. Not to be outdone by mere savages from Albion, a United States senator promptly invited another one to step into the alley. He didn't step, which may be explained by the fact the invitee was Dr. Copeland of New York.

For many years it has been the doctor's annual function, whenever his brother senators became overwrought, to warn them against the physical danger of too much excitement at their age. He only practices what he preaches.

The senator who invited him to step into the alley was Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, 69 years old last January. Dr. Copeland, himself, will be 70 years old next November, a ripe old age for even a health specialist to be dreaming about roundhouse punches.

GETTING UP STEAM

It becomes increasingly evident that Ohio is going to have a humdinger of a contest for the governorship. Gov. Davey has been running for a third term ever since he started his second one. At last he has begun to sprint.

Mr. Davey can set a fast pace when he turns on the heat, which he plainly intends to do. Charles Sawyer, Democratic national committeeman, will have to do some high stepping to keep up. So will all other opponents, if more decide to get into the race.

By the time the primary is over, the Democrats either will be exhausted or going like a house afire, probably the latter. The Republican candidate, who probably will be John W. Bricker, will need to use starting blocks. The Republican primary promises at present to be unspectacular.

The prospect of so much excitement may make some Ohioans nervous, but they shouldn't be. Ohio needs a revival of interest in its own affairs. It needs to take its mind off Washington and pay more attention to Columbus, where most of the things which concern it directly are administered. A hot campaign for the governorship will focus political interest where it should be focused—on the state capitol.

CHALLENGE TO INTELLIGENCE

The search for a magic remedy to put zip into the iron horse is growing more intense. Anyone who lacks a plan is well on the way to becoming a drawing room sphinx.

The simplest cure, of course, would be more revenue; that cures almost everything from the blues to passed dividends and chronic bankruptcy.

A sedative would be government subsidy, but that has been ruled out as too dangerous and futile; it's habit forming. For the present, it seems certain, the patient will be made as comfortable as possible without resort to drastic drugs or operations.

When reading about the railroad problem in the United States, it is desirable always to remember that it differs only in degree, not in kind, from the rail problems of other countries. The United States and Great Britain are the only ones which have successfully resisted all attempts to have railways owned and operated by government.

Britain has resorted to coordination of all transportation facilities as the most likely solution. The United States, where the problem is of vastly larger proportions, must bring to it an intelligence correspondingly greater. It has been inability to muster that intelligence so far which causes the railroad problem to be acute today.

Continued failure to rise to the emergency may be expected to lead, ultimately, to government ownership, which is not a solution, but only a costly compromise with the difficulties of running railroads on a basis of public necessity without running a deficit at the same time.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, April 9.

A very sudden and surprising development in the affairs may be predicted from important planetary configurations. This is likely to have a rather devastating effect on current affairs, with travel, removal or definite change.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden and unforeseen developments that may have a very radical influence on the life and its fortunes. These are under propitious aspects, with change, travel, new associations and interests assured, although following drastic disruption.

A child born on this day, while it may be restless and fond of sudden moves and change, will nevertheless be talented and have sound judgment and responsibility. It should win the confidence and support of its superiors and elders. It may benefit by wills, trusts or insurance and be generally fortunate.

lull, the Tommies dropped in their tracks—sound asleep. Food and drink were scarcely thought of.

At the end of the week the men were all but dead on their feet. Beards covered their sunken faces and their eyes were like holes burned in a blanket. Still they held that line against the odds of ten to one.

It was at this juncture that a little balloon drifted over from the enemy lines with a message from some German officer who had lived in England. It read: "Good old fifty-first, still sticking it. Cheerio."

Because of the confusion, German spies donned English uniforms and swarmed the British front, mingling with the troops. The situation got so bad the British issued orders that any soldier who was separated from his own unit and couldn't identify himself forthwith, was to be shot out of hand.

These incidents were typical of that terrific German offensive. Whole divisions were virtually wiped out in the holocaust. It looked as if it was anybody's victory, with the betting on the Allies not too strong.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland, New York City.

CARE OF BABY

Dr. Josephine H. Kenyon writes a very interesting article in a recent issue of a national magazine. It is entitled "Keep Your Baby's Body Beautiful." She says: "Most babies are born with beautifully formed bodies—it's up to us to keep them that way." How true is this statement.

Too often do we see young children with badly formed heads, protruding ears, bow-legs and knock-knees, the results of neglect when they were tiny babies. These deformities are almost always caused by improper handling of the infant, or by a deficiency disease called "rickets."

Much progress has been made in late years in educating the young mother in the proper handling of her baby. She has been instructed in the prevention of rickets by proper feeding, the giving of adequate sunshine and the administration of cod liver oil.

Great Care Needed: The bones of the newly-born baby are not firmly calcified, the term used for the natural hardening. Great care must be exercised to prevent pressure on the soft bones. Often the back of a baby's head becomes flattened from constantly sleeping in one position. It should be turned from side to side, alternating these positions by placing the youngster on the back occasionally. While nursing the breast-fed baby, its head must be carefully held to avoid any undue pressure.

The tiny ears also call for attention. Slip your hand under the head after you have placed the baby on its side, to make sure that the ear is laid flat against the head. Many a child unnecessarily goes through life with ears that stand out in ugly fashion. If the ears protrude after all these precautions have been taken, an ear cap should be worn constantly. These caps are light and comfortable and can easily be made at home.

The spine, too, must be protected from any injury. Learn how to carry the baby so that the back is supported by your arm. Do not allow it to lie curled up in the crook of your elbow. Keep the back straight at all times. The baby should not be lifted up by the frail little arms. This careless method of handling allows the head to dangle and pulls the spine out of shape.

Don't Wait Too Long: All of these protective measures must be taken when the baby is very young. Do not wait until it is too late. Nothing can change a badly-formed head after the bones are completely calcified.

As the child grows older and begins to lift itself up from a creeping position, watch the little legs lest they become bowed from the weight of the body. I know of a baby who was very heavy, and at the same time strong. This child would pull itself up and try to walk whenever there was a nearby chair or table. The youngster walked sooner than most children of that age, and the parents were proud of the unusual progress. But soon the little legs bowed under weight of the body.

Since it was impossible to keep the child off its feet, the wise grandmother advised buying a kiddie-car a little too large—one that would make it necessary to stretch the legs to reach the ground. The legs were relieved of the child's weight, and the exercise of stretching the legs to the floor soon straightened them out. That was good common sense.

LABORITES WIN ON "BACK TO LEAGUE" SLOGAN

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press Foreign Affairs Editor

NEW YORK, April 8. — British labor has administered a face-reddening rebuke to Premier Chamberlain and his dominant conservative party by electing a member to parliament on a platform of condemnation for the government's policy towards the dictators.

The laborites won under an anti-cabinet slogan of "back to the League of Nations, or get out." They claim the laborites Chamberlain was inviting war by dictating with the dictators instead of "giving them the works" through a resuscitated league.

Naturally British labor doesn't want war, but labor holds no copyright on a desire for peace. The conservatives hate war too. Both of them have good reason to know its horror, for it was burned into the memories of many of them on the battlefield.

Almost exactly 23 years ago a lot of the voters in this election (not to mention our correspondents) were going through the hell of that great German attack which drew Field Marshal Haig's famous order of the day to his troops:

"Every position must be held to the last man. There must be no retreat. With our backs to the wall, and believing in the justice of our cause, each one of us must fight to the end."

Scores of thousands did "fight to the end." Their widows and daughters and sons were voting in the election the other day. And whether they voted for the labor candidate or the conservative, they were expressing a desire for peace.

Prior to the issuance of that "back to the wall" order, the Germans had been coming through so fast in the Somme sector that there were times when British general headquarters didn't know the exact position of either its own troops or those of the enemy. Hell was a mild description for it.

That was the time when American army engineers, who were working up on the British front, held a section of the line with no better weapons than pick-handles. It was one of the epics of the war.

In another sector a British officer rounded up a company comprised of army cooks and other non-combatants and filled a gap in the line. They stood the Germans off for hours until reinforcements arrived.

Up in the Arras sector the 51st British division fought seven days and seven nights with scarcely a pause. It faced ten German divisions, and withdrew step by step, battling every inch of the way.

When there came the occasional lull, the Tommies dropped in their tracks—sound asleep. Food and drink were scarcely thought of.

At the end of the week the men were all but dead on their feet. Beards covered their sunken faces and their eyes were like holes burned in a blanket. Still they held that line against the odds of ten to one.

It was at this juncture that a little balloon drifted over from the enemy lines with a message from some German officer who had lived in England. It read: "Good old fifty-first, still sticking it. Cheerio."

'Cincinnati' Confident But Not "Cocky" In Preparing For National League Race

REDS FORM BIG QUESTION MARK FOR LOOP RACE

Cincy Classed As One of "If-Teams" This Year In National Loop

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 8.—More confident yet not so cocky, the Cincinnati Reds are classed by many of the big "if-teams" in the National League.

News writers trekking northward with last year's cellar-dwellers, who met the Boston Red Sox again here today, agreed that little starting had been noted in the Rhine-landers' training-camp performance—not even their leadership in the Grapefruit circuit.

"That doesn't mean much," commented one, "for there's a lot of difference between early season workouts and the hell-for-leather pennant chase later on."

Another observed, "the Reds haven't met up with any really first-rate pitching yet. Wait till they do."

Manager Bill McKechnie, one of the most successful handlers of pitchers in the game, continued to make no predictions except "we won't finish last." He cited his hunches as "one reason why we won't."

Lee Grissom's one-hit performance through six innings Wednesday cheered the Reds' hearts; Gene Schott, Cincinnati sandlot pitcher, likewise has been showing considerable stuff. Rookies have shown not only spirit, but ability.

Confidence permeates youngsters and veterans alike, but, recalling the quick deflation of last year's "Roughhouse Reds," they appear to have left behind any semblance of "cockiness."

Instead, a quiet enthusiasm is translated into considerable ability to "talk it up" from the bench and an apparent feeling of genuine respect for their manager.

Experts agree that increased batting power in the infield and outfield, and better pitching, than last year may provide the needed punch to put it across.

One of the greatest waves of new stars ushered into the National League in years brought a new first baseman to the team in Frank McCormick, who is expected to be the first-string man. He has accumulated an imposing list of doubles and triples during the training season. He batted .325 during 24 games he played last season.

In the outfield, three other rookies have been heartening McKechnie not only by their defensive work, but by power at the plate: Lee Gamble, Harry Craft, and Allen "Dusty" Cooke. Ival Goodman, regular right fielder who in 1936 led the National League in triples, will be back, but McKechnie has put all other contenders "on their own" for the two remaining garden posts.

Lombardi, catcher who led the team in batting last year with a .260 mark, is on the trading block because there are better catchers available, but so far nothing has developed.

OHIO TANKERS AAU FAVORITE

Mike Peppe Figures His Team to Win Senior Championship

BY FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, April 8.—Jack Kaskey, captain of the University of Michigan swimming team and rated as the nation's outstanding breaststroke exponent, was eligible today to compete for the Wolverines in the National A. A. U. senior championships, but Coach Mike Peppe of Ohio State was confident that Kaskey's conceded points would not be enough to beat the Bucks out of the team title.

Peppe, who watched his squad beat Michigan in a pair of dual meets and the Western conference title races this year, and then lose the national intercollegiate in a single point to the Wolves, had it all figured out that his Bucks would win by a margin of five points the A. A. U. classic scheduled today and Saturday.

Peppe's protest that Kaskey should be ruled off the Michigan team because he's in his fifth year of matriculation was voted down by the A. A. U. committee early today, the group contending that Western conference eligibility rules did not affect A. A. U. competition.

Should Peppe's prediction of victory come true, it would be the first time in A. A. U. history that college swimmers swam away with the title, only athletic clubs having been victorious in the past.

PRESENT DAY FIGHTERS CAN'T TAKE IT?

By PAT ROBINSON.

NEW YORK, April 8.—With but few exceptions, our present day fighters are a bunch of sissies, who either can't or won't take the punishment that endeared the old time warriors to the fight fans.

In the parlance of the ring, they can dish it out but they can't take it. And they can't take it because they have the skin you'd love to touch—with a good right hand.

In the old days, a referee rarely found it necessary to stop a fight to save a man from punishment. Nowadays, fights are stopped so often as to be commonplace. It isn't that the referees are more humane today; it's simply because the modern fighter is soft compared to the old time.

Many of our leading fighters today are what is known to the trade as "bleeders." Their skin cuts like a babe's. One punch and a gash is opened over the eye, the lips split or the nose cut.

Some of our "toughest" and gamest heavyweights look as if their faces had been run through a meat chopper after a battle with an ordinary puncher.

Even Tommy Farr, the British battler, who prides himself on his toughness, cuts easily. Gunnar Barlund, who recently stopped Buddy Baer, is another whose face mirrors every punch. Arturo Godoy, the Chilean, who is a very rough party indeed inside the ropes, has a well washed pan to offer his admirers after every bout.

Harry Balsamo, the belting brakeman, is typical of the modern fighter who can dish it out but can't take it. Harry carries dynamite in his fists and when and if he lands, it's curtains for the other fellow. But it doesn't take much of a punch to stop Harry himself, because he's strictly a bleeder.

WEBB TO PLAY IN HOME TOWN

New Cleveland Infielder To Start Against Meridian Team

MONROE, La., April 8.—Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians announced that Jimmy (Skeeter) Webb, new Cleveland infielder secured when Judge Landis declared him a free agent, would play short-stop against Meridia, Miss., his home town, Saturday.

MONROE, La. With the forfeited game with the Cleveland Indians still the New York Giants' main topic of conversation, writers and the few remaining Giants who served under John McGraw didn't forget him. For as secretary Eddie Brannick put it, "how the old man would have loved to be in on this scrap."

GREENSBORO, N. C.—Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds is just about set on his line-up for the opening game of the season. It's the same one he used against the Boston Red Sox Wednesday, with Ival Goodman in the lead-off spot.

ABILENE, Tex.—With Short-stop Luke Appling injured and Pitcher Monty Stratton relegated to the sidelines, Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox said today he was "just hoping for a spot in the first division." He rated the 1938 pennant field in this order: Yankees, Tigers, Indians, White Sox, Red Sox, Senators, Athletics and Browns.

ABILENE, Tex.—Club President Bill Benswanger of the Pittsburgh Pirates, enroute to St. Louis with crack right-hander Russ Bauers, sent word to Manager Pie Traynor that the swelling in the pitcher's knee was greatly diminished. That, plus yesterday's snowstorm, appeared to have cooled the Buc pilot's temper and he may not impose fines for the rough-housing that led to Bauers' injury.

GREENSBORO, N. C.—When rain washed out the Boston Red Sox-Cincinnati exhibition at Spartanburg, S. C., yesterday, it also ruined the hopes of Jim Bagby, Sr., had of seeing Jim, Jr., one of Boston's better pitching recruits, work out. The old Cleveland had come up from Atlanta for the game, but stayed behind when the teams moved on to Greensboro.

Named Coach

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 8.—Harold "Cookie" Cunningham of the Ohio State university coaching staff today was named football coach at the Baylor School for Boys, succeeding James Rike, coach for 20 years, who remains as athletic director. Cunningham was an all-Big Ten end in football and all-conference center in basketball at Ohio State.

Go To Toledo

LAKELAND, Fla., April 8.—Pitchers Stanley Borbett, Pat McLaughlin, and Joe Rogalsky were released to the Toledo American association club today by the Detroit Tigers.

VANCOUVER, B. C. — Bronko Nagurski, 230, Minneapolis, defeated Jack Forsgren, 229, Vancouver, two straight falls.

However, it's worth noting that no heavyweight champion was a softy. From John L. Sullivan to Joe Louis not one of them was a "bleeder." Maybe that's one good reason they were champions. They were tough enough to battle their way to the top without having their brains scrambled. Even Primo Carnera, who was something of a joke as a fighter, was by no means easy to cut up.

Abe Attell, featherweight champion of the world for eight years

Rookie Lineup Like This Would Delight Any Coach

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, April 8.—If a baseball scout could get the powers of Aladdin's lamp bestowed on him and tour the spring training camps with the right to select any rookies that caught his eye he could gather quite a baseball club. The writer, after such a tour, believes that the following would come close to being the "all-star rookie team" he would pick as the season opens:

1b—Frank McCormick, Cincinnati Reds.

2b — Joe Gordon, New York Yankees.

ss—Frank Croucher, Detroit Tigers.

3b—Ken Keltner, Cleveland Indians.

lf—Roy Cullenbine, Detroit Tigers.

cf—Harry Craft, Cincinnati Reds.

rf—Enos Slaughter, St. Louis Cardinals.

c—Willard Hershberger, Cincinnati Reds; John Riddle, Boston Bees.

p—Atley Donald, New York Yankees; Jim Bagby, Boston Red Sox; Charlie Wagner, Boston Red Sox; Max Macdon, St. Louis Cardinals; Max Lanier, St. Louis Cardinals; Bill Lohrman, New York Giants; Joe Krauskas, Washington Senators.

All of these newcomers appear to have brilliant futures ahead of them, but, of course, some of them will fade when the pressure is turned on and the stakes become high. Rated-off their play in the

and admittedly one of the cleverest boxers who ever drew on a glove, advances three unique reasons for the softness of our modern scrappers, to wit: the headguard fighters use in training nowadays; the rubber mouth-piece they wear in the ring and the vaseline jar.

Now it's undoubtedly true that Abe will never be called upon to take as much punishment as the players of Baseball, but when Abe voices an opinion on boxing, all Cauliflower

Row bends an attentive, if slightly scrambled, ear to listen.

And Abe knows what he is talking about when he says the head-guard is responsible more than anything else for the number of fighters who are now walking on their heels, which is a quaint way the trade has of describing a punch-drunk battler.

"A young fellow who probably has a pants presser for a manager goes into a gym to train for a fight and first thing he does is put on a headguard like a football player," Abe says. "Next he shoves a big rubber mouthpiece in his face. Then the pants presser rubs vaseline all over his face."

"What's the result? He doesn't bother to learn to slip punches with his head or block them with his hands because he knows the head-guard will protect him. But when he gets into an actual fight, he hasn't got the headguard and he gets his brains knocked out."

Attell is, if anything even more incensed about the mouthpiece than he is about the headguard, because he insists it is awkward, unnatural and cuts off the fighter's breathing.

The ring veterans save their most withering comment for the vaseline jar.

"If your wife wants to get her face soft and pretty, she uses vaseline or cold cream doesn't she?" they ask. "Well, the fighters do the same thing nowadays. No wonder most of them look as if they had been run through a meat grinder."

Attell himself and Jack Dempsey and others of the old school certainly did not use vaseline. No, indeed. They washed their faces in brine to toughen the skin, and so well did they succeed that even today they both have skins like a rhinoceros.

JULIAN SLATED FOR GUARD JOB

Former Salem High School Grid Star Due To Get Regular Berth At Wittenberg

SPRINGFIELD, April 8.—Lester Julian, who as a grid star at Salem High school was selected all-Columbiana county and all-Northeastern Ohio center, is slated to hold down a varsity guard berth with Wittenberg college's football team next fall.

Julian, who graduated from Salem High in 1936, is one of the most promising members of the Lutherans' grid squad. In addition to his football, he is also active in campus and fraternal affairs.

He was recently elected chaplain of Theta Kappa Nu fraternity.

TERRY AND HIS GIANTS ARE ON SPOT DURING '38

Scribes Will Climb Onto Bill If His Team Drops to 4th

NEW YORK, April 8.—Just to prove that I'm a thorough sportsman who wouldn't kick a man until absolutely certain that he's down, this outburst is occasioned by a strange desire to do a good turn to William Harold Terry, the boy with the beetling brow. Maybe it's the chorus man in me.

Anyhow, Terry's on the spot with the Giants this season. In fact, two spots and one of them he's made for himself with a published indictment of sports writers that will cause that craft to react very violently the moment an opportunity is indicated. That moment would come if the Giants fall as low as fourth this year, which they could quite readily do.

The other spot is strictly professional. Terry has had almost incredible success with the club, since he took it over in mid-season of 1932, winning the world's championship the following year, finishing second in 1934, third in 1935 and again winning the pennant in each of the last two seasons. But what players did he win with? Why, McGraw's, of course.

Of course, too this was inversely to his credit, since McGraw couldn't win with them. Nevertheless, it shows a side of Terry's managerial equipment that seems open to criticism. They admit he can handle players and concede he's a sharp trader, as the Bartell, Whitehead and Mancuso deals seem to indicate. But the claim, supported by the Giants' personnel through the last five years, is that he can't develop men.

So far, he has been winning with Hubbell and Schumacher, Ott, Moore, Danning, Leslie, Leiber, Ryan and other legacies from the McGraw regime. When Jackson, Ryan and Critz began to go as infielders, he had nobody to step in there and carry on. Instead, he made trades for Bartell and Whitehead, with the result that the club picked up from third in 1935 and went on to win two pennants.

The point is that, without developed replacements, the time must come under this system where he'll trade himself out of a ball club. Hubbell, still a great pitcher, is nevertheless beginning to falter. Schumacher has been on the way out for several years. Ott, who has carried the club's attack for many seasons, is still under thirty but has been in the league thirteen years and may start to go at any time. The fact is that he had bad legs when he came up in 1925 as a mere boy and playing third base every day, instead of the outfield, isn't going to help that. Mancuso already has been relegated to the second flight.

Clyde Castlemann, a pitcher of considerable ability and considerable liability, is a Terry man. Another is Jimmy Ripple.

SAN MATEO, Calif., April 8.—Johnny Adams' feat of booting in six straight winners, five of them long shots, at Bay Meadows track was listed today as one of the greatest records in American racing history.

The pudgy little jockey from Iola, Kas.—the country's leading rider last year with 260 winners—started his parade in the third race yesterday with Miss Amie, which paid $19.60.

He then piloted in Danke Schon at $10, Rock X at $14, Dr. Sponn, $16, Nonsweep, $16.80 and Undulate, $5.80.

Adams picked up $160 for his day's work—$25 for each winner and $10 for bringing Strident in third in the first race.

His feat was just short of the American record set by Joe Sylvester at Ravenna, O., in 1930.

Salem Slugger To Battle Youngstown Lad In Final Bout of Amateur Program

Jimmy Perry Presents Third Indoor Boxing Show at Memorial at 8:30 Tonight; Don West Defends Unbeaten String In Bout

Booked for his stiffest test since donning the leather mittens for Jimmy Perry's Athletic club, Bill Hamacher, Salem's slugging light-heavyweight, goes after his third consecutive knockout victory at the Memorial building tonight in the main-go of Perry's third amateur boxing show of the indoor season.

Hamacher, who has scored two clean-cut kayoes over Alliance opponents in previous bouts here, will test his dynamite-laden punches on the willing chin of one Eugene Mort of the Cocoanut Grove A. C. of Youngstown.

Mort comes here rated as one of the top notch amateur sluggers in Youngstown, a city noted for its production of simon-pure and professional fighters.

Possessing equally powerful left and right jabs and an exceptionally dangerous looping left hook, Hamacher is a strong favorite to win, despite the impressive ballyhoo which Youngstown amateur promoters heap on the shoulders of "Mortician" Mort.

If Hamacher survives tonight's test, which he is expected to do, Perry plans to book him against still stronger opponents, possibly several of the state's Golden Gloves champions.

In his two previous performances in Perry's shows, Hamacher has stood out as the best of the local slugging crop. He has demonstrated little skill in the art of boxing, but has made up for his lack of finesse with power-packed punches which have spelled kayo to Kid Freconna and Bud McGhee of Alliance, neither of whom could be called set-ups.

Sharing the spotlight with Hamacher on tonight's show will be scrappy little Don West, the Salem high school freshman fighter, who has licked everything that has been offered him to date.

West is slated to mix-it-up with Johnny Freconna of Alliance in the 130-pound semi-final scrap.

The local scholastic scrapper has five straight victories to his credit, among these an impressive decision over Enoch Henry of East Palestine, one of the district's best in the featherweight class.

West, who is one of the leading prospects for Salem High school's 1938 football team, scored his most recent victory over Bud Sampson of Alliance in Perry's last show.

Two of Perry's newest finds—Joe Janovic and Charlie Wilson—will be seen in preliminary bouts. Both will be making their first start in the squared circle.

Janovic is scheduled to square off against Armando Domiani of Alliance in a 145-pound affair, while Wilson will battle Kid Freconna of Alliance at 170 pounds. Janovic will be meeting a newcomer like himself in his bout, but Wilson will be forced to stave off the attacks of an experienced battler

County Baseball Heads Meet Here

The second of a series of pre-season meetings for the Columbiana County Baseball league will be held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Memorial building, Thomas H. Cartwright of East Liverpool, president of the circuit, announced today.

Additional matters concerning the 1938 program for the league are to be discussed.

Salem will again be represented in the circuit by the Althouse Motors, sponsored by E. H. Althouse. Other teams definitely lined up for this year are East Liverpool, Wells-ville, Lisbon, East Palestine, Negley and Newell, W. Va.

TERRY AND HIS GIANTS

inserted in the lineup as a desperation move in mid-season of 1936 and whose hitting represented the difference between fourth place and first. The prize candidate, of course, is Cliff Melton, the 20-game winner last year, with Bill Lohman an admitted possibility this time.

Other replacements through the years have been McCarthy, Brennan, Coffman, Brown and Berger, discarded from other clubs, with Harry Gumbert to be listed as a Terry development, although he's hardly a success.

In fact, the present trend at the Polo Grounds is hardly reassuring for the immediate future. Terry has won with a second rate club, a great performance on the field. It doesn't seem possible that it can win again and it might fall apart before October—because Terry apparently is not quite what he should be, off the field.

Therefore, the timing of that magazine article is open to serious question. For this seems to be the year when Terry, getting by at last without the top-stride assistance of other men's players, make the turn in his managerial life. And around that corner is a reception committee, waiting with—

Well, no matter what else you say for or against them, sports writers don't forget.

Pabst Keglers Cop

Fourth In Tourney

CHICAGO, April 8—Catching the Birk Brothers Brewing Co. team in the current American Bowling Congress is beginning to look like a task impossible of fulfillment. Chicago's Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer team, pre-tournament favorite to win the title, had its chance last night. The fact that the Pabsts rolled a good series of 3036 to take fourth place made the Birk figure of 3,234 look all the bigger and more remote.

The only other change in the standings was in two-man teams when Michael Spotilla and Walter Rezek of Gary, Ind., rolled 1391 to take third position.

CHAPTER XXII

Kirby laughed with a deep exultation. Jaxie had made no effort to draw away from his embrace, but he held her closer. "One minute after I saw you, I knew that I had loved you always," he told her. "And so did you. I saw it in your eyes." His own looked deeply into them now and drew from their shining depths her own confession. "I can't deny it," she whispered. "I love you—oh, I do love you." Jaxie repeated vehemently, as if she had to convince herself of the truth. "My precious!" His lips possessed hers.

They parted suddenly, as the door opened and the brakeman crossed the platform with a lantern in his hand. He glanced into them briefly and disappeared into the next car without a word. Love affairs on limited trains were no novelty to him, even if the participants did believe that an unprecedented miracle had just taken place.

Jaxie laughed shakily and pointed to the words painted across the outer door, "Do Not Stand on This Platform." "We weren't," Kirby denied. "We were floating, somewhere in space above it." But he took her arm and opened the door into the observation car. It was deserted, save for an old gentleman who still perused his newspaper diligently.

"Say, this is great!" he exclaimed, as they reached the platform and drew deep breaths of the light, clear air.

A crescent moon hung like a platinum jewel against the breast of the sky between two mountain peaks which might have been the shoulders of a giant of black velvet. As the train climbed up the grade with scarcely a sign of slackened speed, the whole world seemed to unroll before them in the lyric sheen of the young moonlight, which flooded the mountains and cast deep black shadows of their peaks into the alleys and rocky canyons.

It was as if they two had just been presented with the whole world and it now lay before them for endless miles—vast, gripping, beautiful, mysterious—the love they had just found. As if fate had taken them upon a mountain peak to reveal to them the immensity of this new revelation of life. They stood at the platform railing—not jesting and chatting, as upon the previous night—but silent and impressed both by their emotion within and the beauty without. Kirby's arms held her close, her head was thrown back against his breast, against the beating of his heart. Its thudding raced with the clicking of the wheels. Both of them seemed to sing triumphantly, "I love you, I love you." She felt like an atom being rushed backward into limitless space, but she wanted to go on that way, forever, feeling small and light and deliriously happy.

Momentarily Jaxie thought, "I've promised to describe to the public all the thrills of this trip, but I'll have to renege on this one. Not only is it too intimate, but there are not enough beautiful words in the whole world to describe it."

Suddenly a monster hand closed down over them. They were swallowed by that world which had been laid before their eyes. Jaxie shrank back against Kirby in the abrupt darkness and rush of sound, knowing that they had entered the Raton tunnel, but grateful that Kirby's arms held her close, there in the bowels of the earth, at the mercy of powerful elements—this puny train load of humans swallowed by a gigantic mountain. Smoke shrouded them and grew more dense as the circle of light which was the entrance to the tunnel receded into the distance and rapidly grew smaller. The reverberation of sound against the rock walls was deafening.

Jaxie reached up her lips to Kirby's ear and said as softly as possible, "I'm so happy, dear, that we discovered this before we entered the tunnel, and that we are here alone, together. Could anything be more thrilling?"

"Holding you like this—anywhere—is the most thrilling thing in the world," he declared.

"Oh," she answered. "I feel as if we were rushing madly into a new world, through a void, propelled by invisible forces. Oh, Kirby my darling, hold me close so that I shan't lose you."

"If I hold you any closer, there will be nothing left of you when we arrive," he laughed against her ear and kissed it, pressed his lips to her hair, her eyes, her mouth—there in the darkness of the tunnel where the lights of the platform and train were of no consequence, for no one was near to see them.

Finally they rushed back into the night again, emerging from the tunnel as suddenly as they had entered. The moonlight poured out a brilliant flood around them, in contrast with the thick blackness and smoke which they had passed through, and the fresh air washed over them in a refreshing current. "I guess that will be enough tunnels for you for awhile, won't it?" he demanded.

"It was almost too long," she confessed. She was breathless; but how much of it was caused by the gaseous air of the tunnel and how much by her own emotion, she did not know.

"I didn't know there could be so much genuine excitement in all the world, much less on a little four-by-six platform on the top of the world."

"But we must go in now sweet-heart. There is tomorrow also, and then another exciting day when we arrive, and many others to follow."

"As if I could sleep tonight!" Jaxie chided him.

"Happy, Loveable?"

"So happy I'm afraid I shall wake up and discover it isn't real, after all!" she sighed.

"Isn't this real?" he kissed her again.

"I hope it is!"

"I'll prove it tomorrow," he promised.

"Tomorrow!" she repeated the word, musingly. "How confidently we plan for tomorrow, and yet we never can be sure of it. Out here in these mountains, darting into the heart of them, creeping along the edges of space, we exult over tomorrow! This moment is all that is real!"

So they parted, reluctantly, filled with emotion and yearning for more, torn apart by conventions when nature had just united them. And the Big Chief rumbled on through the night, shrieking, clanging, lurching and snorting like an unleashed demon, while the undulating rails slipped away from the rear platform with the swiftness of magic, and yet always were there—miles of shining rails.

From heat-breeding prairies and shimmering cornfields and sweet meadows, it had passed that day into sand and hills and stark, rocky buttes, through narrow rock walls looming sheer to the sky, over desolate dry stream beds, crawling through tunnels and creeping cautiously across frail steel trestles as if feeling its way. It roared through the villages arrogantly, as if it scorned to favor those poor little huddled and isolated spots with a stop, but the lights of the villages winked knowing eyes and settled back contentedly in the darkness, when it had passed them.

by. But there were proud cities that the monster dared not pass by and, like the snobbish leader of society, the more important the place, the longer it remained to partake of its hospitality. Such places were Las Vegas and Lamy on that night, but no passengers descended from the train at these places to stroll on the platform. Those who lay awake in their berths heard the clang of switch-engine bells, the hiss of escaped steam, the rumble of baggage trucks, an occasional shouted command. Then the strain of the wheels returning to motion, the shriek of a whistle, the clanging of a bell, and again they were off. (To Be Continued)
